COUNTRY NEWS.

THE ORANGE COFFEE MINES—The new smelting works, at the Cadiangullong Copper Mines, were tested, on the 21st instant, and proved, we extremely regret to say, a failure, in consequence of the unsuitable nature of the material employed in constructing the furnaces. The defect is to be remedied immediately, and for this purpose a large quantity of frebricks is to be brought from Campbell's River. Of the extraordinary richness of this mine, no atronger peoof need be afforded than that, notwithstanding the imperfection in the smelting works, the yield was such as to surprise some of the old Cornish mines, who witnessed the smelt. A correspondent, writing from the rrines, informs us that there are now 200 men employed there; and that it is the intention of the manager to increase the number largely, when the smelting works are reconstructed. The Canoblas Copper Mining Company have just issued a report on the prisent state and future prospects of their mine, in which it is stated that the mine has lately very nuch improved in appearance, a large course of ore, consisting of rich oxides and carbonates having been cut in the east end of Burguans's level.*

From the immense size of the lode, vast quantities of ore could be obtained. An old South Australian miner says that if there were more men employed, so as fairly to develop the mine, it would turn out to be one of the best copper mines in New South Wales.

A respite was granted in consequence; but Mr. Torpy failing to produce the evidence referred to, the Government instructed Superintendent Zouch to take a final stificative from the principal witness against Smith, which had been done accordingly; and we hear that Mr. Alfred Bishop has in this stidiary confirmed his evidence as given at the late Assizes. (From the Western Post, May 28.)

This second exhibition in connection with the above association took place on the Queen's birthday, in the association's new yard, the ground for which was presented by the president, Mr. G. H. Cox. The weather, which had for some days previously been threatening, proved remarkably five, the attendance was consequently very numerous. The arrangements being greatly superior to those of last year, the exhibits both of stock and produce were seen to greater advantage. Convenient and substantial yards were erected for the stock, pens for the sheep, and a canvas booth for the produce and poultry. The following gentlemen acted as judges of horse stock:—Mesers. W. Clark, R. W. Heard, and J. W. Foreman.

stock:—Messrs. W. Clark, R. W. Heard, and s. W. Foreman.

There were three entries for thorough-bred colonial horses:—Mr. H. Bloomfield, Mr. E. Bloomfield, Mr. W. R. Blackman. The prize, a silver medal, was awarded to Mr. H. Bloomfield.

Colonial cart horse.—Only one entrance, Mr. Nelson Lawson. Prize, aliver medal.

Thoroughbred colonial mares.—Four entries:—Mr. H. Bloomfield, three; Mr. E. Bloomfield, one. Prize, aliver medal.

Alignment of the prize aliver medal.

Prize, silver medal, awarded to Mr. H. Bloomfield's cheant mare.

Colonial cart-horses.—Ten entries:—Mr. G. Wal-her, Mr. H. Bloomfield, Mr. J. Bax, Mr. T. Keogh, Mr. J. M'Donald (two), Mr. A. M'Ewen. Prize, silver medal, awarded to Mr. J. M'Donald.

Prizes of silver medals were offered for the best thoroughbred imported hare, best imported cart-horse, thoroughbred imported hare, and the best imported cart-mare. For none of these were entries made, the medals consequently remain for competition next year.

Mr. W. R. Blackman. Prize, allver medal, awardad to Mr. R. Lowe. Both animals were generally and deservedly admired.
Colonial bulls.—Three entries: Mesars. P. and A. Cox, Mr. W. Lowe, Mr. P. Cox. Prize of £1 to Mesars. F. and A. Cox, which was protested against on account of age, by Mr. R. Lowe.
Imported cow or heifer.—Only one exhibited, a remarkably fine-bred animal, belonging to Mr. G. H. Cox, which was universally praised. The judges recommended that a silver medal should be awarded. Colonial cows or heifers, two years, three years, and aged, a prize of £1 for the best of each.—Them were fourteen entries: Mr. B. K. Cox, aged; ditte, heifer, three years; Mr. R. Lowe, six, one of these being a heifer of three years, the other a white heifer of two years; Mr. W. Lowe, three years; Mr. W. Lowe, can year; Mr. J. Dorey, two years; Mrszzs. P. and A. Cox, Mr. G. H. Cox, Mr. Frank Cox. They prizes were awarded to Mr. H. K. Cox, aged; Mr. Prank Cox, two years; Mr. E. K. Cox, three years, Mr. R. Lowes aged and two years old, and Mr. John Dorey's two years old were highly recommended by the judges.

Pat ox or cow.—There were seven entries:—Mr. R. K. Lowe, two; Mr. R. Lowe, Mr. G. H. Cox, Mr. R. Lowe, Mr. G. H. Cox, Mr. W. Lowe. A prize of £1 was awarded to Mr. K. Lowe.

This part of the exhibition attracted considerable attention, the whole of the exhibits being of first class chiracter, reflecting great credit upon the district and expecially upon the owners for the enterprise they have shown in procuring stock perhaps equal to say in the colony.

Bloomfield, Mr. G. H. Cox, Mr. N. P. Biyly, wa. For which a silver medal was awarded to Mr. N. P. Biyly, Mr. G. H. Cox and Messrs, H. and E. Bloomfield's pens were highly recommended by the judges.

For the best wool, in pens of five ewes, —There were eight entries—Mr. E. K. Cox (four), Messrs, H. and E. Bloomfield, Mr. G. H. Cox (two), Mr. N. P. Bayly—for which a silver medal was awarded to Mr. E. K. Cox for his first pen; his pen Ns. 3 was highly recommended. The sheep were the most successful part of the exhibition, and were much and deservedly admired, embracing, as they did, extreme fineness, great length of steple, and extraordinary large fleeces. Well may the exhibitors be proud of possessing such really valuable animals. We question whether any were ever bred in the colony qual to them. Mr. N. P. Bayly, who took the prize for the best pen of fise weelled rame, valued them, we believe, at £50 each; and Mr. E. K. Cox's pen of ewes were considered almost equally valuable.

Messrs, Frank Cox, J. W. Foreman, and R. W. Heard were appointed judges of the pigs.

There was only one boar exhibited, a splendid animal, which the owner (Mr. Hollvard) omitted to enter.

The chairman first presented the alliver medal, which were received with suitable acknowledgments. Mr. N. P. Bayly upon receiving the large silver medal for the best pen of five fine wooled rams, said that no person in the district was less smbitton of honours than himself, but the henour of receiving that medal was to him the most plassing and distinguishing testimonial he could possibly receive. He had had no intention of exhibiting any sheep, as he did not consider it was the proper time of the year to judge wool, but having been taunted by some of his competrs that he was afraid to exhibit, he recolvible show them that he was not afraid, and that he would exhibit sheep with which they could not successfully compete. It was at all times a pleasure to receive a prize, but against such formidable rivals the value was doubly increased. He was well awars that some of the best sheep in the colony would be pitted sgainst him, even from two gentlemen who had the honour of receiving Mort's gold medals; he did not, however, wish to say anything in disparagement of the sheep exhibited by those gentlemen, none but his own could be found in the colony to excel them. The medal he had is his hand he should always view with pride, and he would have engraved thereon in letters of gold his celebrated wool mark N.P.B.

Messra, F. and A. Cox stated that the bull they hadeshibited and for which a meany prize had been made, the medals consequently remain for competition next year.

The exhibition of horses was the only unsatisfactory part of the show. It woes from many of the owners of the best horses in the district declining to exhibit their stock at this time of the year.

Messra, W. Clark, Frank Cox, and J. Healy were appointed judges of the horned stock.

THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

THE OPERING OF PARLIAMENTS.

By Pirmerman a 50, Poet Laureste to the N. S. W. G. P. P.

Prom the Sydney Most, May Stat.

It's of our preshous Parliment,
And of its opening day
I strike my toomful lire,
Which It was the month of May,
On Tuesday, 17, when
The Guver he come down,
To meet him gentu and ladies went.

Prom overy part of town.

He draw up in his carriage,
Which the coachman wore a wig
A modhered in pulsaria
And drawed in gallian be had,
And the looked so spruce and gay,
With the nosegay in his buzzum
Of the awetiest flours of May.

Which the footmen too had nosegies And canes of jet black wood, Their brishes showing off their carves As up behind they stood. With 6ir John was Mr. Turvle, A reglar joily swell; And with bim was his ade cong, Which he's a lord as weil,

The rojers with their coats of red,
The pleese with coats of blue,
which they were to do him honer,
As up in line they drew.
The men of war and men of peace,
They made a gailinant site;
The sojers with their firelox,
The pleese in gloves so white,

And when Sir John alited,
Which it was the hour of noon,
The edgers all presented arms,
The band struck up a toon;
The please did nothing, but they eyed
The dirty ragged boys
As clambered up the pailings, and Made all the cheers and noise.

for John, he bowed most grashusly
To the ojers and the cheers,
And then he walked right up the steps,
And in smonget the Yeers.
A gert in black slik breeches,
With a black rod in his hand,
And swells in gowned and wige, and things
To meet him there did stand,

But oh! the site as met his eyes When he had got inside Australia's youth and heauty there Were shown in all their pride; Which the bonnets and the crinerican They must have had a crush, And the silks so brite and ribbins gay, They tuffered in the rush,

For there were indies on the flore
Which they were forced to stand;
And there were felices on the seate,
The force is a seate of the seate,
And they we indies plastered up
Against the dusty wall;
But one there was a missing there
The highest of them all.

Eir John, when be was scated,
For th' Assembly loud did call,
Which with the Speaker at their head,
They marehed into the hall,
Charles Cowper, Weekes, and Amold,
All the Ministry was there,
Which they left behind, Jack Robertson
A titting in his chair,

A sitting in his chair.

And members from all parts were there,
The A's, and B's, and C's,
All rite down to the W's,
Which there and tany V's,
They pushed, and showed, and crowded so
And hick up such a riot,
I thought we'd have to take a few
To quod to make them quiet.

To quot to make them queet.

And when they'd pushed and shoved themselves.

As far as they could reach,
They stood or sat all open-monthed.
To each the Geomet's speech.
Sir John he gave it out to them,
In very first-rate style,
All that preshes lot of promises
Didn't even make him smile.

Didn't even make him smile.

He went all through it like a brick,
Said all he had to say,
Then bowed all round to every one
Then bowed all round to every one
Which the gent in black wilk breeches
Had all his work to do
Amongst the hoops and members
For to get the Gavner through,
And who as Bir John he eame outside
The boys begun to cheer,
The troops presented arms, the pleese
I'dd nothing else but stare.
The coachman cracked his whip, the coach
It rattled off so gay;
And there being nothing more to see
The people went away.
And now God bless our grashous Queen,

The people went away.
And now God bless our grashous Queen,
And bless bir John likewise;
And bless our glorious Parliment
As give our pay a tise.
And may I often have to write
About their opening day,
so now no more at present from
Your servant

NAMOI RIVER, MAY 28.—The country up here is looking pretty well, but the protracted drought is telling upon stock generally, many of the back waterholes having become dry, and the river very low and dry in many places—I have not seen it so low for three years past. A high, cold, cutting wind, together with frosty nights, is any thing but comisortable.

Our clergyman, the Rev. J. Price, has been on a tour of-this his district now five weeks past. It is much to be regretted that his attention was not confined to a narrower space, as it is felt to be a deprivation in this neighbourhood that he cannot space more time amongst us. His services are highly prized by all who know him or have the pleasure of his acquaint-snee.

MEMORANDA TO THE NEXT PUBLICATION

The Sydney Morning Beralb.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1862.

Ir is impossible to dismiss from our minds for any length of time, the condition and prospects of the American continent, and the effects of the unhappy and, as may be truly said, "unnatural" unnappy and, as may be truly said, "unnatural" conflict which rages between the Northern and Southern inhabitants. How closely they have been connected, and how violent the rent by which they have been divided, is indicated by nothing more clearly than the intensity of their animosity, and the bitterness of their mutual denunciations. We have already given expression to that divided opinion which prevails in almost every British community—not a division of the inhabitants into two parties distinctly sympathising with the North or the South, but that schism, which every man finds in his own mind as he turns to the various aspects of this quarrel, and is affected by its contradictory characteristics and

It is impossible to wish for the absolute triumph of the North, both on account of the hostile spirit displayed by its prominent states-men to the British Government and people, and of that exclusive commercial system which, while enjoying all the fruits of free trade in other lands, it has attempted to impose upon our commerce and manufactures. On the other our commerce and manufactures. On the other hand it is equally impossible to reconcile the English mind with slavery, or with its supporters. Thus every time we are compelled by the nature of the controversy, to look at the bold fact that the South is the sole defender of slavery—abandoned or condemned in every other Christian country—that it there finds advocates—nay more, eulogists, who disdain apology and claim perpetuity for the greatest crime that can be committed against men—it is impossible to feel any warm sympathy even where the to feel any warm sympathy even where the South may have had ground of complaint, or to wish that it should issue from the war but as an inferior power compelled to endure sequestration from the civilised world, or to abandon its peculiar institution "

Upon a re-examination of all the details which have reached us of the prospects of the parties, we see no reason whatever to depart from the conclusion at which the statesmen of Europe arrived from its commencement. The North will be a grand confederacy of free States exercising a powerful influence in the affairs of the world -but no longer able to assume that tone of in-solence and defiance which was as much regretted by its first class statesmen as disdained by the sober sense of mankind. Whoever magines that the Northern States of Americ become powerless through this schism must certainly have overestimated the effects of this war. The territory which will remain under the stars and stripes will still be immensely beyond comparison with that enjoyed by any other State, whether we consider the natural wealth and exwhether we consider the natural wealth and ex-tent of the ccuntry, or the industrial aptitudes or resources of the people by whom it is in-habited. No. North America will be able to speak with her enemies in the gate, and the arrows of her quiver will still be in the hands of the mighty. There is nothing to fear for the great principles which lie at the foundation of her civil institutions, while there is some reason to hope that the awful crisis there is some reason to hope that the awful crisis through which she has passed will rectify the errors of her government. It may lead to such modifications of its framework as, without essentially weekening the force of the people, will secure more liberty to the individual citizen, and a freer scope for those various interests which, crushed or misrepresented, leave but a dead and unsightly mass, terrific in its weight, but afford ing no free scope for the various forms of life struggling within it.

On the other band, the independence of the South will probably lead to the subversion of the slave system as effectually as any abolition measure could contemplate. It will disappear perhaps more slowly but not less surely. Freed from the embarrassment of this odious question the North will be able to maintain the principle that England asserts—that the mo-ment the slave touches the shores of Great Britain his chains fall off, and he becomes a free man, amenable to the laws—entitled to its protection, and capable of enjoying all its benefits. How greatly this will alter the value of slave property may be seen at a glance. The far interior may be still under the control of the slave system, but the ever-advancing frontiers of freedom will push still farther and farther the planter who seeks to enjoy in security his property in man. In proportion, too, as light and influence extend themselves, avenues will be over for the executed themselves, avenues will be over for the execute of the state. will be open for the escape of the slave. So valuable as labour must remain in all parts of America—although the negro may be unwel-come in the midst of large populations—he may still find a home among those broad lands which languish for cultivation, even should the project of the PRESIDENT not be accomplished, and some land of promise not open itself to the occupation of his race.

In speaking of the separation of the North and the South as facts which only require the formality of recognition, it is by no means to be assumed that the North will gain nothing by resistance. There seems to be a great probability that one or two, perhaps more, great States, where the slave system has no large development, may be included under the banner of the North. These frontiers may in future years seem to be worth, from the resources they will supply and the geographical completeness of their outline, all the effort made to retain them. The division of the extreme South and North may be perfectly certain; but it is not so certain what certain; but it is not so certain what will be the exact line upon which the banner of the Free States will be finally planted.

Our latest telegram, under date April 5th, tells us that the retreat of the Federal army continues, but that they are expected to protect Richmond. By turning to the map, it will be seen how small the advance of the Federal troops, and although it is perfectly true that sometimes the occupation of a very narrow space is equal to the conquest of a country, this is far less the case in a country of recent occupation than in an old one. The olan of the war on the part of the Confederates, it is not improbable, is consistent with their retreat, and a report prevails in Melbourne that later than any published news a letter con-veys a rumour that the Federal army, in its pursuit of the Confederates, had crossed ground which had been carefully mined, and that an explosion had followed which produced that general panic which may explain the next clause of the telegram—"The Federal army has returned from Manassas disorganised: there is great irritation against General M'Lellan." Attaching, however, no undue importance to the Attaching, however, no undue importance to the rumour of the explosion and subsequent panic, it is highly probable that the advance of the Federals would expose them to confusion and disorganisation. It was stated by Wellington that there were in England but two or three Generals who, if they got twenty thousand men in Hyde Park would know how to get them out again. The manipulation of troops must be always extremely difficult in a country where every accident of ground tends to disjoin and distract them; and when we consider that even the extreme ardour of an attacking force has often extreme ardour of an attacking force has often ed to the defeat of the main army, we should of the rederals should our subsequent informa-tion prove true, that the army had returned to their lines in a state of confusion and disorgani-sation. That which NAPOLEON was unable to sation. That which NAPOLEON was unable to do, namely, conquer a country strong for defence, may well prove a discouraging enterprise, especially where the defenders, to say the least, are of equal courage and resource, and are attacked by assailants without equal local knowledge or local support.

Should these probabilities be proved by our next intelligence to be facts, the war will be practically at an end. Some mode of mediating will commend itself to the necessities as well as right feeling of the American people, and as right feeling of the American people, and we shall see the conflict terminated perhaps as auddenly as it began. Then will come the process of reparation, and though an enormous amount of wealth and time have been sacrificed by the war, the energy and industry of American people will soon put things When it is considered that the straight again. annual produce of industry is commonly con-sumed within the year, and that the surplus which survives to form the accumulation of wealth, is a mere fraction of the whole, it may be easily understood how readily even the devastations of war may be repaired, when security and peace shall once more return to the

MR. MORIARTY has the honour of having headed the first division of the session in which Ministers have been beaten. He makes it his special care to see that hon. members break up at a reasonable hour, and so have a fair chance of getting to bed before the "small hours." He has constituted himself master of the cere monies, and though he does not absolutely break up the party as the clock strikes eleve break up the party as the clock strikes eleven, by turning the company out, blowing out the lights, and locking up the doors, he at least orders that no new dances shall be struck up after that hour.

The number of members who readily quiesced in this arrangement shews that it has recommendations. It has in its favour recommendations. It has in its favour the practical test of experience. Those who have tried it like it, and are willing to be bound by it again. In the heat of debate, no one likes to stop short. Every one is, more or less, in a state of excitement; every one is game to go on. But when to forecasting the business of the session in cool blood, how members conclude that it will be better to shut up as soon after eleven as possible. Experience shows that there is very little creditable progress made after that hour, and that though the rule may at times be found inconvenient, it will, on the whole, be more beneficial tham injurious to the real work of the session. Perhaps, if Mr. Moriary were to add to his code the further regulation that the refreshment room should be shut up by nine o'clock he would find less difficulty in persuading how, gentlement to go home at eleven.

Mr. Forexer is always great at a theory, and the reasoning by which he condemned Mr.

MORIARTY's restriction on Parliamentary liberty would have been unanswerable if it had not would have been unanswerable if it had not unluckily proceeded on an incorrect assumption. Members of Parliament are the chosen of the people. They are the select men out of the whole community—chosen expressly because they are "fit and proper" persons to do the country's Parliamentary work. It is impossible for them to foresee at the beginning of a session all the contingencies the terror.

sion all the contingencies that may arise. The work cut out may be light; it may become unwork cut out may be light; it may become un-expectedly heavy. It may be possible to get through it all leisurely; there may be need for a push and a rush. Why, being thus in igno-rance of what degree of exertion may be re-quired of them, should they voluntarily fetter themselves beforehand by a rule which may often stop their doing what, without that rule, they would unquestionably do? Why not retain their liberty to act as circum-stances should shew to be most expedient? Why not retain their liberty to act as circumstances should shew to be most expedient? Then, if it is convenient to adjourn at eleven, they can do so; and if public business requires them to go on till one, two, or three o'clock in the morning, they are free to do so. They must always be the best judges of so. They must always be the best junges of the proper course to pursue from time to time, and why should that judgment be arbitrarily superseded by a Procrustean rule that must almost always be either unnecessary or must almost atways be either unnecessary or inconvenient?

This reasoning would be irresistible if we were to admit that at eleven o'clock p.m. hon, members always were in a fit condition to determine at once whether the public interest would be exercised. be served by their going on with the business on the list. Mr. MORIARTY's regulation, adopted by a large majority, is equivalent to a confession that this is not the case—that it is not expe-dient to allow the House a discretion from day to day as to the hour for stopping the supply fresh business—that the liberty is on the wh more likely to be abused than to be rightly used, and that it is safe to have it withdrawn.

As Mr. Forster indignantly said, it is "a confession of impotence." No doubt it is, but confession of impotence." No doubt it is, but it does not follow from that that it is unwise. Supposing the impotence to exist, is not it wiser to make the confession than to pretend to be blind to the frailty? Nothing is gained by self-decep-tion. The reformed drunkard who turns teetion. The reformed drunkard who turns tectotaler may, perhaps, be similarly taunted with the sarcasm that the "pledge" is a confession of impotence. So it is. But it is a useful restraint, which experience has shown helps him to resist temptation.
If he had never abused his liberty, there would never have been any necessity to restrict it. But finding his power of resistance to be weak, he fortifies himself by a resolution, and subjects his inclinations to bondage.

The fact is, that liberty is only profitable where there exists the capacity to use that liberty wisely without abusing it. This is as true of the individual man as of the nation, and of all societies and organisations of every intermediate grade. Where this capacity does not exist it is far better that the liberty should be clipped than that it should desense is into be clipped than that it should degenerate into be clipped than that it should degenerate into license. Perfect men and perfect societies may be allowed perfect liberty, and the progress towards perfection consists in the increasing sbility to deserve this allowance.

Eight hours a day ought certainly to be enough to enable hon, members to get through the whole work of the session with adequate thoroughness. And perhaps every member individually would confess that the time would be ample if it were not that the other members be ample if it were not that the other members were so given to wasting the time of the House. There is no necessity for hurrying at an indecent pace over any questions that are presented for consideration. Nothing would be gained by limiting discussion so long as the discussion is of the right sort—that is to say, of the sort that ought to take place within the walls of Parliament. The reason why there is so much complaint of the incessant talk of hon. members is that some of them are so much addicted. complaint of the incessant talk of hon. members is that some of them are so much addicted to talking wildly—talking incoherently—talking to no purpose—talking for talking's sake. Otherwise talking in itself is far from being blameworthy. They are sent to Parliament to talk—to hear each other talk—and to vote when talking has done the work that talking is intended to do. It is the abuse of the liberty of speech that needs so much curtailment. If there were no discussion, Ministers with a docile majority could carry their measures as a matter of course, and the Parliamentary forms would be a farce. Henorable members are sent to Parliament for the express purbers are sent to Parliament for the express purpose of talking over the Ministerial conduct and proposals—to take their measures to pieces and examine them in detail—to put them in varied lights—to suggest modifications and argue in their behalf—to institute inquiries—to elicit information, and to rebuke or exhort as occasion, may require. The talk inside the sion may require. The talk inside the walls of Parliament is, or ought to be, the echo of the talk outside. It is the constitutional expression of the varied shades of public opinion, and it is the power that tempers what yould otherwise be the de with a good working majority. The forms of Parliament provide a perfect protection to even the most unpopular speaker against being put down. Every member is free to speak as long as he likes. This liberty is necessary as a protection to the minority. It is an invaluable privilege, so long as it is used in the spirit in which it is granted. It only becomes a nuisance when it is abused. That it is so often abused, when it is abused. That it is so often abused, is a proof that too many who find their way into Parliament, are not really fit and proper men. They lack the power of self-discipline and self-control, which is necessary to enable them to subordinate their inclinations to their duty, and to abstain from the exercise of a prerogative which it may be pleasant to them to exert, with-out its being profitable to the public. There is time enough in abundance in a sitting of eight time enough in abundance in a sitting of eight hours a day for every member to say all that he has to say—that he ought to say. It is because so much is said that ought to have been left unsaid, that the hours slip away unimproved. Give us a Parliament composed of men who can abstain from abusing the right of unlimited speech, and Mr. MORIARTY's regulation may be safely withdrawn.

Post Office Enquire.—A Commission, consisting of the Auditor General, the Postmaster-General, and the Inspector-General of Police, commenced an enquiry yesterday, at the Post Office, respecting a missing registered letter. It is expected that the enquiry will last over several days.

Change of Bioant.—A warrant was yesterday issued for the arrest of a gentleman engaged in aquatting pursuits on the Namiol, on the charge of bigamy. The second wife is stated to be connected with a respectable family at Windsor.

Coaching to the Lachian.—The Melbourne Herald of Wednesday, the 28th ultimo, says:—Cobb and Co. do not intend putting on a line of coaches between Herekworth and the Lachian, but they have some intention of despatching coaches and drivers to the Lachian for facilitating communication between that gold field and Bydney, if the yield of gold keep up, and there be sufficient to warrant such a step.

New Music.—The talented planist, M. Boulanger, has composed a very brilliant "Caprice" on airs from the opera of "Lurline;" the principal being the plaintive aria, "Flow on, gentle Rhine." The variations display the great resources of the composer in that quality of music, and surround the thems with the most sparking and itquid passages. As a study for the amateur, or a piece for the accomplished musician, it will be found extremely interesting. The publisher is Mr. J. R. Clarke, of George-street, who, in the "Caprice," maintains the reputation he has gained for correct notation and clear printing.

Coronne's Enquiry.—The City Coroner held an enquiry at his effice yesterday, touching the death of a man named William Cormack, aged twenty-seven years. It appeared from the evidence that the deceased was a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, hat been ten years in the colonies, and was usually employed as a linen-draper's assistant. He had suffered a considerable time from consumption—a disease fir m which several members of the family had died.

employed sea a linea-draper's assistant. He had suffered a considerable time from consumption—a disease for m which several members of the family had died. About twelve menths ago he went down to Queensland for the benefit of his health; but as he continued to get weaker he returned to Sydney about three weeks ago, and went to lodge in Castlereagh-street with Mr. Sawyer, with whom he had resided prior to his departure for Queensland. On Bunday evening last he was sitting in the house after tea engaged in conversation with two other persons, when there was some difference of opinion respecting the pronunciation of a word, and Cormack took down a dictionary to satisfy himself on the point. While so engaged he commenced coughing and vomiting blood; he was conscious that his end was approaching as he made a remark to the effect that it was all over with him; but he requested that a doctor might be called in, and accordingly Dr. Warren was sent for. That gentlems arrived immediately afterwards, but medical skill was then of no avail, and Cormack expired about ten minutes after he was seized with the vomiting. The coroner found that the rupture of a blood vessel in the lungs was the immediate cause of death, and he did not consider it necessary to held an inquest.—The inquest commenced at the Royal Yacht Hotel, Forbes-street, Woolloomoloo, on Saturday last, to enquire into the circumstances attending the death of a new-born male infant, the illegitimate offspring of a girl named Johanna Rose, was concluded yesterday. The girl, described as a prostitute, is a native of the colony, and was sixteen years of age in April last. The child was born on Friday last, a neighbour woman acting, out of charity, as midwife. The infant appeared to be strong and healthy at birth, and took food as freely as infants usually do. It was very restless, however, on Friday night; and when, on Saturday morning, the mother took it from her side to hand it to a woman to wash and dress it, it was found to be dead. Dr. Milford made a pea-morris of a dangerous nature. Lee will be brought before the Central Police Court this morning.

PRINITIVE METHODIST BALAR.—A bassar for the purpose of raising funds to pay off the debt upon the Primitive Methodist chapel, Kent-street, was opened yesterday, at the Hall of Temperance, Pitt-street. There was a very good show of articles, and we were pleased to see that the useful mingled very largely with the merely ornsmental, several stalls being devoted to articles of household use. A new feature in bazar-keeping was also introduced on the present occasion, one stall having been fitted up for the sale of poultry, pigeons, &c., of which a large stock had been sent in by different contributors. The whole of these were cleared out at an early hour. There was also a good supply of vegetables, of which the cabbages and carrots were exceedingly fine. These also sold well and rapidly. Amongst them was a gigantic pumpkin, of the squash kind, weighing 139 lbs. A large number of persons attended, and the amount of receipts was exceedingly satisfactory. It is to be continued to-day.

of persons attended, and the amount of recession was exceedingly satisfactory. It is to be continued to-day.

REOFENING OF THE LYCRUM THEATAH.—The Lyceum Theatre, in York-street, was reopened by Mr. Tolano on Saturday evening, after a short recess, during which the interior underweat many extensive alterations and improvements. The decorations and embellishments are at once elegant and appropriate, reflecting much credit on the snterprise of the lessee, and on the taste and ability of those artists by whom they have been specially designed and carried out. The new drop curtain, by Mr. W. J. Wilson (son, we believe, of one of the well-known artists employed in connection with Drury Lane Theatre at home), is very deservedly admired. It consists of a charmingly painted view of the picturesque ruins of Philze—the old frontier town of Egypt, on the banks of the Nile, above Spene. The painting is exhibited as in the oval centre of an elaborately finished glit frame, which has a very novel and pleasing affect. On the panels of the dress boxes are eight medallions, representing views taken from different points in the harbour of Port Jackson, and other famey paintings. The remaining decorations of the theatre have been abily executed by Mr. Rennie, of Pitt-street. The fittings, &c., of the boxes, and ether parts of the house, are still undergoing important alternations and improvements, but are to be completed in the course of a few days, prior to the commencement of the dramatic season with a new and efficient company. NEUTRALITY 1". SYMPATHY; OR THE NATURAL DEATH OF SLAVERY. Kill your enemies? hill a fool's head of your own! They'll die of themselves, if you let them along!

The course adopted by the Home Government in reference to the American struggle has been sanctioned by the perfect acquiescence of the British nation. It has, indeed, been eminently British nation. It has, indeed, been eminently dispassionate and dignified; indicating a spirit too lofty to be awayed by irritation or by cupidity. It is impossible not to admire the calm judicial temper in which the validity of the Southern blockade was discussed and finally recognised. There were many plausible grounds for denying that blockade to be effectual in the sense required by the law of nations, while it was painfully clear that the stoppage of the customary supplies of that the stoppage of the customary supplies of cotton was inflicting on England heavy and unmerited loss. There were the strongest com-mercial inducements to ignore a very doubtful claim, and treat the Southern ports, as to all intents and purposes, open, while, at the same time, the tone and temper of the North was such as to render British forbearance not only time, the tone and temper of the North was such as to render British forbearance not only thankless, but absolutely humiliating. It is greatly to the honour of the British Government and Legislature that they could neither be tempted nor taunted into a violation of neutrality; that they would not abuse the overwhelming naval strength of which they were conscious, nor "to do a great right, do a little wrong."

The acquiescence of the people of England, and more especially of the manufacturing population, in a line of conduct which costs them so dear has been yet more strikingly praiseworthy. They have the candour to admit that the Government are acting rightly; and they are patient under their own severe privations because they believe them to be undergone in a good cause. Multitudes of operatives, no longer able to command work, even at reduced wages, struggle on day by day without clamouring for a change in the national policy—without even murmuring at its special pres-wages, struggle on day by day without clamouring for a change in the national policy—without even murmuring at its special pressure on themselves.

Patience like this is not simply the result of general confidence in the Government, and the Legislature. No doubt there exists, in spite of Mr. Bright and other fomentors of classical consists, a wide-spread belief among the people of England that they are, on the whole, fairly represented and wisely governed. But this general impression would not prevent a suffering class from recognising the injurious effects of a particular policy on their own condition, or from assailing that policy with the one-sided keenness of self-interest. No respect for the Premier or the Parliament would have been strong enough to prevent that natural and not unreasonable outcry against a paper blockade which might have been looked for from cottonless Manchester.

cottonless Manchester.

Still less is the long endurance of our factory operatives the result of long-sighted calculations as to the future of the cotton-trade.

It is true, no doubt, that the interruption of It is true, no doubt, that the interruption of those enormous supplies of American cotton on which Lancashire mills have hitherto depended, will stimulate the production of cotton in various parts of the British Empire, especially in India and Australia. It is probably also true, that should this interruption continue for three or four years, English cotton-factories would cease to depend for their supplies of raw material on the Confederate South, while a forcible reopening of the trade would go far to check the efforts now making for the production of colonial cotton. But calculations like these, however interesting to the statesman, political economist, or mill-owner, can weigh but little with masses of hungry workmen. With such persons, some strong and simple feeling must have been at work to produce the extraordinary patience with which they have endured continued and severe privation. Nor is it difficult to trace the feeling which has actually existed. With Englishmen of all ranks, the hatred of slavery amounts to an instinct, and the questionable blockade of the Seuthern ports is accordingly regarded as a less evil than aiding the Confederate slaveholders by reopening their cotton trade. The feeling is worthy of all honour; the inference which it prompts is at present the source of much practical good, as it prevents any agitation against the neutrality thus far resolutely maintained by the British Government. England may well be content that North and South, so long rivals in unprovoked hostility to her, should weaken each other by a costly and useless struggle. And when that scruggle ends, as in all human probability it must, in the establishment of two separate Federations, one of slave-holding States, the other of States expressly opposed to slavery, it will be a legitimate subject of rejoicing should the larger resources or better strategy of the North have enabled them finally to detach the border States from the Southern Confederacy. Such a result would greatly weaken the slave-holding interest, a those enormous supplies of American cotton on which Lancashire mills have hitherto depended, the true English creed that slavery is a doomed as well as an accursed thing; "Res detestabilis or slavery—the establishment of two antagonatic federations its downfall.

But there is an unreasoning sympathy with the North too widely prevalent, which looks on the subjugation of the South and the forcible restoration of the Union in its integrity as not merely possible but desirable in the interest of freedom. Against such sympathy, however amiable the feeling in which it originates, we would most earnestly protest. We are not now proposing to adjust the balance of culpability between North and South. We shall not enquire whether those who have maintained and cherished slavery with a view to securing their own human chattels, or those who have sanctioned, fostered, and extended it, who have sanctioned, fostered, and extended it, in order to enrich themselves by oppressive tariffs and by the transit of slave-produce, have sinned with the less excuse. We would simply argue, that the reconstruction of the Union (granting it possible) would be the perpetuation of slavery—the establishment of two antagonatic federations its downfall.

Thus far, slavery in the South has been progressive, because the powerful and flourishing States of the free North, have abetted and upheld it for their own profit. The passing of the thrice-accursed Fugitive Slave Law speaks volumes on this head. It implied a tacit bargain that the Southerners should pay an overprice for Northern manufactures, while the men of the North on their part should secure to them (as far as legal enactments could secure) the slave-property which might otherwise slip through their fingers. Thus far, in short, the strength of the North has gone to uphold that institution which is, in truth, the weakness of the South. Restore the federal bond, and slavery will once more have a legal and constitutional claim on the free States—not merely for indulgence, but for support. It has been admitted hitherto by American politicians of every class that the Federal Government has no constitutional right to interfere with the "domestic institution" of slavery in individual States. It is absurd to suppose that this admission will be retracted when the question is of reconciliation and reconstruction. It is diffiof reconciliation and reconstruction. It is diffi-cult to conceive that under any circumstances the Confederate States will again coalesce with the North; but if such an event is indeed con-ceivable, it is only on the assumption that the North will give abundant guarantees for the security of the "legal rights" of the slaveholders. New York will still supply funds for carrying on the slave trade; and the Supreme Court of the re-United States will still, as heretofore, declare a slave on American ground to be property just like any other chattel.

ground to be property just like any other chattel.

But place a slave-holding Federation side by side with one where slavery is not recognised by law, and where there is no longer any miserable inducement of self-interest to blind men's eyes to the great principles of freedom. Let the North be to the South what Canada and Nova Scotia would be to the North if the men of the North were slave-holders. Surely, the result is easy to foresee. It will become more and more difficult to retain the negro in bondage;—an open frontier, to cross which will be "Liberty, Freedom, and Enfranchisement," will take the place of the underground railway, which even now baffles so many bloodhounds, biped and quadruped. The supply of fresh slaves will wane rapidly, for the navy of the Northern Union will then be as earnest as that of Great Britain in suppressing the slave-trade. Negro labour will become more and more costly, and by degrees will be replaced by the cheaper paid labour of a free population. It is superfluous to carry out the argument in detail—it may be condensed into one short sentence. Slavery is too rotten—too weak—to stand alone; to isolate, is to destroy it.

William Rutledge and Co. has pre-ented itself, to all the thoughtful people of this district, as a calamity more deeply indicating the change in colonical business matters and general depression than anything which has occurred since the called forth an amount of sympathy as creditable to the public as it must be soothing to the feelings of that much respected firm.

MARISTERS ADMITTED.

Mr. Plunkett, Q.C., moved the admission to the Bar of New South Wales of Frederich Matthew Darley, Esq., who had been called to the Irish Bar in 1813.

Their Honors stated that two of them had some knowledge of Mr. Darley, and that they had great pleasure in welcoming him to the colonial Bar.

Mr. Isaace moved the admission. as a barrister, of William Corbett Jones Parry, Esq., who had been called to the English Bar by the Society of the Inner Temple in the year 1851.

Their Honors had much pleasure in welcoming this gentleman also to the colonial Bar.

Expraint Groves—APPLICATION FOR A PROBIBITION.

Mr. Faucett moved for a rule miss for a prohibition to restrain Mr. District Justice Purefoy, and the Register of the District Court at West Mailtand, from any further proceedings under a judgment of his Honor, in a suit wherein the present applicant was made defendant. The ground of the spilication was, that there had been a want of jurisdition. The District Courts' Act gave jurisdiction only over persons resident in the district. The applicant, who was sued by a school-mistres, resided, it was sworn, at Namol, and had never resided in the Mailtand district. The then plaintiff was also resident in the Manol district when the cause of action accrued. The defeadant was absent when the case came on for trial, and the point of no jurisdiction was taken but overruled.

The Court granted a rule miss, returnable on Monday next.

Mr. Morton moved for the appointment of the Hon.

seating the Cherric during Probley, and the Supplication of the Cherry Configuration o which they might have sustained in connection with their peculiar position. This was the course taken in this declaration.

Mr. Justice Wise of the same opinion. This was an application for which there was no precedent. The same difficulty—if it was one—would arise in every action for libel, more especially when the plaintiff was a person occupying a public position. The cause of action here alleged was not that by any particular words the plaintiff had been libelied as a private individual, and by other wildled as The Court could not compet the plaintiff to analyse and separate the article, and say what parts reflected upon him in his private, and what on his public character, so as to prevent him from relying upon the assumption that he had been injured by the article, as a whole, in both capacities. The decendants must know as well as the plaintiff tow far their article applied to him in each capacity, and knowing this could plead such justification as they thought fit. The Court was not now deciding that the declaration was good, but simply that the order now applied for could not be made.

A week was allowed for defendants to plead.

Mr. Broedburst, C.C., moved for and chained an accept.

A west was allowed for defendants to plead.

Nosstrate v. N. GUIGAN.

Mr. Broedhurst, Q.C., moved for and obtained an arrest of judgment in this case, upon the ground that the record showed that the promisery note sued upon was one upon which—on the authority of a decided case—plaintiff could not recover. which—on the masses, could not recover.

LAYTON v. DARCLAY.

This was a sult for various services rendered as a cierk, &c., including the copying of certain electoral lists for the defendant (a returning-officer), which lists had never been banded over to defendant. Mr. Stephen now moved for and obtained a rule miss for now trial upon the ground that the amount for this alleged service had been improperly allowed by the jury.

BUCKNELL V. MANN.

Sir William Manning, Q.G., moved for and obtained a rule miss for a new trial, upon several grounds. The action was one of ejectment for part of the Elmshall Estate, and the plaintiff had obtained a verdict. The principal ground upon which the rule was granted was that defendant had been taken by surprise by the evidence of a witness who was a defendant on the record—a tenant of the substantial defendant?s. There were also points as to the admissibility of certain deeds.

FITCH V. THE LIVERPOOL AND LONDON FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.

COMPANY.

Their Honors gave judgment in this case, granting a new trial upon the ground that the verdict was against evidence on the point as to whether plaintiff had given, when applied to by the Company, preper details of the goods censumed, as he had it in his power to give.

be fairly dismissed from the question.

It has never been denied, so far as I am a ware, by any one in authority, that the Church and Solina, I lands could be sold by the Crown. Eard Glenelly, w. ting under date 30th November, 1835, says:—"I say 200 sufficient ground for adopting a different rule se to these lands from that which now applies to the 4th possible of these lands, subject of course to any existing leasagin the same manner and on the same tarme as the sale of other lands is conducted, appears to me to be preferable to the creation of any new leases." Again, in a despatch, bearing date 24th November, 1837, the same nobleman asys:—"I mut, therefore, atrongly disposed to think that the proper course will be gradually to sell these lands precisely in the same manner as other lands in New South Wales at the disposal of the Crown."

The Bishop of Sydney having made various efforts, first to recurs the fund for the Church of England only; and, ercondly, to prevent any sale of the land, Sir George Gipps, under date 9th January, 1836, says:—"Considering that the Legislative Council has wood £4,000 to defray the expense of the establishment, for the support of which the lands were originally given, the elimination of the colony (since neam will here expend explaint on land, of which he has not the fee simple) does it mussiful and consequently, underproved, to the detriment of the colony (since neam will here expend explaint on land, of which he has not the fee simple) does it his colony would have just reason to complain. THE HARBOUR DEFENCEs.

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sin,—A great deal has been written, and not a little said, about "Our Harbour Defences." Multifarious have been the suggestions as to the best mode of meeting an enemy or of stopping him altogether. Fortifications on South Head, Middle Head, George's Head, Shark Island, Clark Island, and Garden Island have found their advocates; then, "Virbum Sap.," comes to the rescue with a sunken fleet and a canal to Botany. Another suggests the cutting a canal from the ocean to Manly Beach, and there are a host of writers in favour of a blockship, or iron plated frigate, a blocking-up of the eastern channel, and a waterline battery on the Bow and Pigs. One thing is tolerably certain, and that is, that all these athemes cannot be tested; but the most facible is that which proposes to meet an unwelcome visitor in the "chops of the channel," yet, whatever plan may eventually be decided on, there is one little matter that generally will be admitted to be a very necessary part of any scheme for harbour protection, and in which a beginning may at once be made—I allude to the MRN required to do the business. It is scarely necessary to wait until the fortifications or the frigates are built, before steps are teken to obtain and discipline a body of "Naval Volunteers."

The whole of the land is well watered, and the greater proportion securely funced and subdivided.

EF MARK LODGE possesses every requisite to recommend it as a gentleman's country seat. The locality is most desirable, being only about five minutes' walk from the railway station, and having also a considerable frontage to the main road testween Paramatats and Liverpool, it has constant access to Sydney by railway, or a good road the whole distance. The general aspect of the property is very beautiful, and reminds the visitor of the open park accessry of an English estate. Verdant fields margined with belte of timber, and a succession of flowing water courses are conspicuous in the view, while the homestead is embosomed in the midst of one of the best vineyards in the colony, and the ornamental grounds configuous are laid out with undoubted taste and refinement.

The estate is brought into the market by the mortgageo for bona fide sale, and it is hoped that it will attract the attention of those who are seeking a suburban retreat, which, from conveniency of position on the railway line, is peculiarly eligible for the business man who has daily to be in the city, and which at the same time will prove a pruductive investment, yearly increasing in value.

It would also be a most advantageous purchase for dairy purposes, or as a depot for stock arriving for the Sydney market, as it is close to the junction of the main Western and Southern Roads.

The Herald states that Mr. John Graham, of the Ovens and Murray district, is trenching for vines with his steam plough. His intention is to put in not less than thirty acres of vines this season. That is an example which might be worthily followed. Mr. Grahem ploughs sixteen inches deep, and gets through nearly an acre a day. As to depth of ploughing, that is in the opinion of many vine-growers quite sufficient. But a good deat, of course, depends on the nature of the soil.

The same journal states that the Victorian goldfields seem now to be well satisfied with the late fall of water for two or three months on hand.

NEW ZEALAND.

NEW ZEALAND.

The Breadaibane brings us one day later from Auckland, her dates being to the 13th of May.

The only news possessing the alightest interest relates to a late meeting of the natives at Upper Weipa, which is thus noticed by the Special Correspondent of the Bouthern Cross, in a communication to that journal dated 5th ultimo. He says:

About a week ago a native of Rangiawhia obtained a summons from the British magistrate against a halfeaster young man named George Gage, who is or was lately one of the King's soldiers; but the King-party interfered to prevent the trial and assaulted the magistrate.

On the 29th ultimo Wiremu Kingi, Te Rangitake, On the 29th ultimo Wiremu Kingi, Te Rangitake, Rews Tukorehu, and others, attended a feast given by the Waipa natives at Homepuka, near Mangawhere, a stream famous for eels. The talk was about the return of William King to Taranaki; as to the propriety of expelling all Europeans from the district; and as to the expediency of compelling Lewis Hettit to pay rent, who has evaded, somehow or another, making any payment up to this time.

The party who took the horses from Ormsby, and dragged him into the Waipa, about two years ago, went recently to the Runanga, and said the dispute would never be finally settled until it went before a British magistrate, and expressed a desire to bring the affair under his consideration, but they were told on no account to do so; that if they did it would open a road for all the country to that court.

This is not the first time it has been proposed to expel the Europeana. The king-maker, William Thompson, wanted them'to do so two years ago, but it is a measure by no means popular with the multitude. There is a considerable minority of good, well-disjoice as much as the Europeans in the faction was overthrown.

Two express messengers have come up from T transhi to the king, relative to the road making there. From what I can learn we may expect a brush with the Ngatirusnius. It so, possibly the king will assist his allies.

Another correspondent writes from Waips on the 7th, stating that the Maories had started a newspaper, printed in the native language. As a specimen of the Maori press, he gives the following translation of an address issued by the originators of the scheme:

PANUITANOA.

Hearken all native people, also all white men.

The printing press has arrived at Ngaruawshia, and a newspaper has been printed. The tile is "The Free Gift of the Emperor of Austria." It will be published twice every month, on the 1st and on the 1st .

Take notice, it is for each Hunanga to dicide who shall be the person in each district with whom the paper shall be left, like this for Rangiawhia, with Tasti; for Tamahere, with Kihi; for Haungastrari with Tieriri. This is the plan by which the papers are to be distributed to all parties; there'shall be one person that shall have them and look after them, each person much setch them from him without delay.

The value of this Press is that it will convey our thoughts to all the inhabitants of the world, because word from the beginning has always been straightforward—"religion, love, and law."

MAURITUS.

Via Melbourne, we have news from Port Louis to the 11th of April.

The railway question is attracting much attention. In the latest papers we see no further references to the cholera. The subscription for the relief of the sufferers by this Jreadul scourge has reached 12,000 dollars; the inhabitants of Reunion have given expression to their sympathy in adding to this fund. The services of two medical men were also gracefully effered by the Governor of that colony. Governor Stevenson, in thanking the Governor of Reunion and in declining the services of the medical officers, told him that this mark of sympathy expressed, and the prompt assistance tendered, would be always held in warm semenbrance by the Government and colony of Mauritius.

The Commercial Gazette of the 7th assessing Face

him that this mark of sympathy expressed, and the prompt assistance tendered, would be always held in warm semenbrance by the Government and colony of Mauritius.

The Commercial Garette of the 7th says:—"Fae Legislative Council met on Friday, and was presided over by his Excellency the Governor. The approval of the following votes by the Secretary of Sexte was announced by a minute from the Governor:—£600 to Mr. Beyts, for his services during his missin to India; £769 to cover the expenses of the axid mission; £6768 for the construction of a police station at the Briqueterie. On the application of the officers who were engaged in preparing the new currency notes for circulation, a month's extra pay was voted to the late treasurer and auditor, and £300 to the clerks who assisted them. A draft of ordinance for enabling the Government to pay £300,000 from the Colonial Treasury, and to borrow money on debeatures to the extent of £1,000,000, for the construction of railways in the colony, has been approved by his Excellency the Governor."

On Thursday evening (says the same journal), Mr. Alfred Legoy, clerk to the Municipal Corporation, was arrested by the police upon a warrant charging him with having forged the signature of Mr. J. Labonte, town-clerk, and of having made use of the seal of the Corporation, which he affixed to the salleged forged decument.

The Chamber of Agriculture has been occupied with the questions which most closely interest it—the boore, and the means of destroying it, the introduction of new cares for planting, the heavy expense of the large proportion of female immigrants, and the disease in the cane. On this last subject a very able and interesting paper has been received by the Chamber from Mr. James Morris, in which he attributes the disease in the cane, and the existence of the borer, to the continual cultivation of the same plant in the same soil. There is no doubt that this theory is founded on practical experience as well as scientific observation. It is to be remarked, however, that well received at the capital, but little is yet known of his proceedings while there.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

By wey of Mausitius we have news to the 4th of March.

The Mital Mercury of that date, in a review of the month, contains the following:—

Forcible appeals continue to be made through our columns for the interference of the local and laperial Governments in regard to certain lawless acts of cuelty and slavery perpetrated by the Boers over the Natal north-western borderers on certain natives.

Nomansland is said to have been annexed to Natal, and the Surveyor-General, we believe, is now in that locality fixing the boundary beacons, but no official announcement of the fact has yet been made. Some of sur contemporaries seem to fancy this will interfere with Sir George Grey's arrangements for locating Adam Kok's people, but we neither see how this should be the case, nor do we think it desirable, for the Griquas are both producers and consumers. The fact of Sir Walter Currie having gone in to meet our Surveyor-General, does not look like any alteration. When the small island of Inyak, in Delagoa Bay, was recently annaxed, a formal proclamation in reference thereto duly appeared in the Natal Government Gazette.

Moshesh and the Free State Boers are once more hand and glove, and the hero of Boom-Plasts is urgent that our Cape Government should take him under their protectorate. Many months ago we alluded to the Portuguese of Delagoa Bay having hoisted their flag, and laid claim to some portion of the der their protectorate. Many months ago we alluded to the Portuguese of Delagoa Bay having hoisted their flag, and laid claim to some portion of the country in the Transvaal, lying between Pretoria and the coast. By a recent mail it was reported they had warned off the Boers, and given them to understand any further advance in their direction would be repelled by force; but we are not yet in possession of the real merits of the case, the report of the Boer deputation which was sent to the Portuguese authorities not having been received.

SUGAR BEETROOF.

BUGAR BEETROOF.

We have already drawn attention to the growth of the white or Silesian bestroot in Victoria, because we believe that the crep would be found exceedingly profitable. The climate of this and the other colonies, with the exception perhaps of Tasmania, is quite equal if not superior to that of France, where bestroot sugar is now, and from the time of the First Napoleon has been, one of the staple productions of that country. It has been again and again proved that all the plants of the Bets family grow admirably, at any rate in this colony. So much is this the case, that the seeds may be sown at any season of the year, if there is only sufficient moisture in the soil, or if enough is supplied, to make them germinate. We would here refer our readers to the remarks we made on this subject in the first page of the Feomas of December 7, 1861, where it will be seen how profitable the cultivation of sugar-best may be rendered, both by the manufacture of sugar and the distillation of a coarse spirit, useful for the preparation of perfumes, or for other purposes. It will be seen by the following extract from the letter of a correspondent of the Ohio Farmer, that in America this crop is regarded as a highly profitable one:—

A few days since, Professor M. A. Mot (a very intelligent and scientific Frenchman), invited me to eal at his rooms in the "States" Hotel, in this city, where he showed me a splendid specimen of sugar he had just manufacture sugar from the bestroot, but did not succeed in obtaining any, although he succeeded in making a very excellent syrup. About the same time or perhaps a little later, Mr. Joseph Bullivant, of this city, incurred some which time it has been entirely abandoned so far as my knowledge of Ohio extends.

In 1869 I procurred some white sugar-beet seeds from France, which I gave to Professor Mot. A portion of these seeds was planted in gurdans in this city, and others in or near Newark. From these seeds Professor Mot procured beets averaging six pounds, several of them weigh were crowned by the production of a splendid article of sugar.

From a computation based on this experiment, the following may be regarded as the amount which may be produced per acre, if skilfully and properly managed. By plenting the beets one foot apart, in rows two feet apart, 22,000 beets can be grown to the acre; now if these will average six pounds a piece, the aggregate product will be sixty-five tons of bectroots. In France, it is said that the sugar produced is equivalent to fifteen per cent, of the raw material. But suppose we say that ten per cent, only is manufacturable into sugar; or suppose we modify even this statement, and put it down at 6000 lb. of sugar, and 6000 lb. of syrup, equal to 600 gallons of syrup per acre—the sugar will be worth say six cents per pound, making 360 dollars; the syrup will be worth say forty cents per gallon, making 240 dollars; the product per acre, 600 dollars.

This is no fancy sketch nor idle speculation. Professor Mot has ordered from France sufficient sugar becaroot seed to plant ten acres next spring, and is preparing machinery and apparatus on a scale sufficiently large to manufacture the product.

All soils will not produce the beetroot equally well, nor can sugar be made from the roots grown in some soils. Then, again, it requires considerable chemical knowledge to succeed in manufacturing the root Certain chemicals, or rather chemical preparations, are indispensable to the successful manufacture of the sugar.

After Professor Mot has his beet-sugar establish.

Certain chemicals, or rather chemical preparations, are indispensable to the successful manufacture of the sugar.

After Professor Mot has his beet-sugar establishment in successful operation, it would be well for young men to serve an apprenticeship of three or four months with him in order to learn how to manufacture, and thus prevent much valuable time and raw material from being sacrificed or wasted for a want of proper knowledge to turn it to the best account, as has been done with the sorgho.

Three years ago, many persons were disposed to regard the sorgho as a failure, but in the hands of competent men it has proved a triumphant success. Mr. C. Jacobe, of this city, has presented me with several gallons, which is fully equal to any "Golden," "Boston," "Sugar-house," "Belcher," or other syrup I ever tasted—it is entirely free from that peculiar taste or flavour generally a concomitant of sorgho syrup. From the best authorities I can obtain on the subject, I am disposed to put down the sorgho syrup crop of Ohis for 1861, at not less than two and a-half million gallons, whilst other parties place it as high as 6,000,000. It would not be surprising if in the or six years "Ohio sorgho syrup" would be as abundant in the best markets, as the St. Louis or Boston syrup has been heretofore.—The Yeoman and Australias Acclematiser.

CHURCH, LIBRARY, and DRAWING-ROOM ORGANS.—W. H. PALING begs to inform his friends and the public that he has obtained the agency for the sale of Organs in Australia of the calcurated firm WALKER and CO., organ builders, of Stutgardt. A sample has lately arrived, ex Delfshaven, which has been put up in the planoforte warehouse, 83, Wynyard-square, and has been pronounced by compelent judges to be one of the finest instruments of its sits ever imported in the colony. This beautiful organ, having foot peckles of 24 octaves, with 16 feet register from C to D, which gives great majesty and depth of tone, possenses also some newly invested stops of the most refined intonation, and a swell of a particularly improved construction; it has a touch hitherto unrivalled—the wind being supplied from separate wind chests or pallets responding to each individual pips, by which means the most rupid passages obtain perfect distinctness, and the sccape of wind from nepige to another, often occurring under the old principle through change of weather, is thereby thoroughly prevented. The case is of purely gottle style, of very elegant design, elaborately carved in rich walnut wood. Ministers, Churchwardens, and others, are respectfully invited to inspect the same.
